

Slough celebrates Shayne

Slough has received its guest of the year Shayne Ward as hundreds of screaming girls clambered to get a glimpse of the heartthrob.

The pop singer and X Factor winner kick-started the festive season by switching on the Christmas lights in Slough, the Slough & Windsor Observer reports.

With the help of Slough mayor Rashad Butt, the star pulled a leaver which ignited a chorus of celebratory fireworks.

Young girls were seemingly the most delighted of all the visited, as they screamed and held up banners and posters for Shayne.

One local girl, 17-year-old Fay Blackmore, said she had thoroughly enjoyed the event.

“This has been the best day of my life. I can’t believe I met and hugged Shayne Ward,” she told the news source.

Shayne’s new album is due to be released on Monday and is called Breathless.
