

Santa hits the road

The annual Reading Toy Run took place this weekend (9th December).

Hundreds of bikers from all across the Thames Valley dressed up in fancy dress in order to deliver Christmas presents for Barnardo's centres and children's charities in the Reading area.

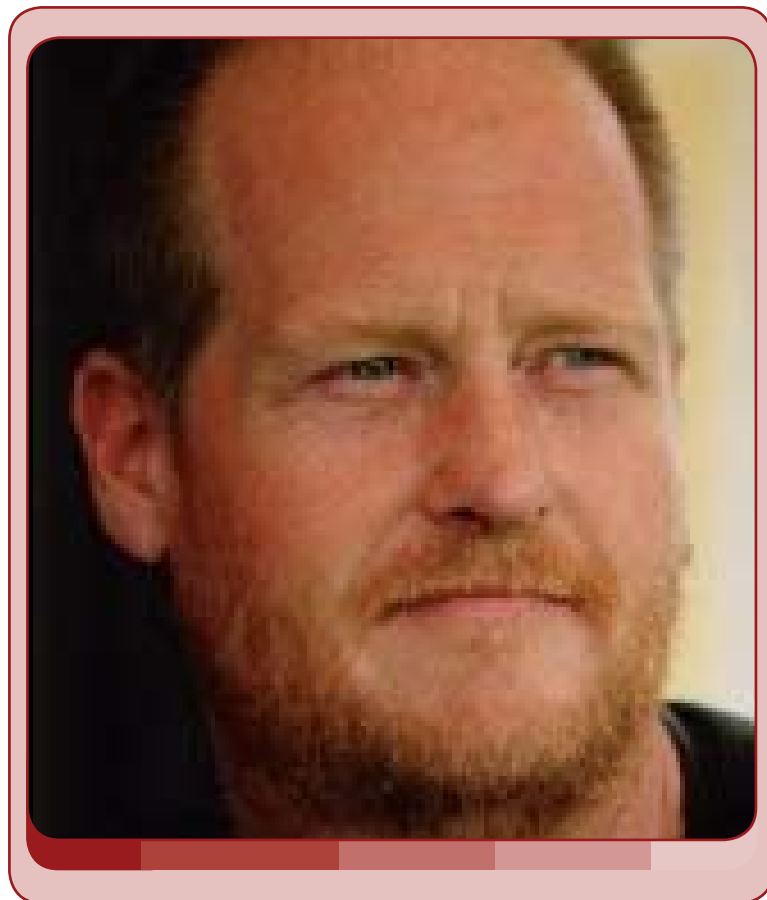

They met at Foster Wheeler and delivered the gifts to the staff at Barnardo's High Close School in Wokingham.

Reading Christian Motorcyclists have organised the Toy Run for 22 years and bikers from several groups take part.

Reverend Sean Stillman, co-founder of the event, said: "It started out all those years ago with just 18 of us biking mates with our Christian faith and we got together to take a few toys to children in the local area.

"Here we are 22 years on with a few more of us."
